

We are all journalists now

Citizen journalism has transformed the media landscape. Suggest examples of good citizen journalism here.

Citizen journalism has changed the media landscape in recent years in ways that would never have been possible until the internet age. Here are just a few examples: the amazing OhmyNews in South Korea, written almost entirely by citizen journalists. The “We are all Khaled Said” Facebook page, set up by Wael Ghonim, which helped spark the Egyptian protests that toppled Hosni Mubarak. The Drudge Report in the US. The Chinese blogger Han Han. Russian bloggers like Alexei Navalny, exposing corruption in high places. Please add what seem to you good examples here, with some explanation of why they belong on this “We create” list.
